"I liked showing my parents my learning strategies."

"I liked showing my Mum what I like best and what I do best. I also liked how I presented it - I had done a good job on my slide."

"I liked doing it with the other people that were there as well."

"I liked showing my parents my work."

"Showing my parents all of the stuff that we have been doing outside of the curriculum was good."

"I liked showing my mum and dad all of my pictures."

"I liked being able to talk clearly straight to my parents and letting them know how I'm improving."

PARENTS

“I love seeing his awareness of his own progress and honest self-reflection being honoured and utilised into creating purposeful goals that he is engaged with.”

“Giving the child agency is important! I think this is really going to help foster a love of learning for kids when you can help them have a say in things.”

“We prefer the input of today’s conferences. There is more time to see everything and for the students to show us their work. We are very happy :)”

“It was so lovely to see you were so confident explaining your work. I thought you did a great job of explaining your strengths and weaknesses throughout your work.”

“It was a great way to get a full overview of how and what the children are learning in each subject.”

“The presentation of this was so well organised and it is obvious she is achieving and loving school.”

TEACHERS

“I liked that our students had a lot of clarity about where they are in their learning. They were really proud to share their work for the year and how much they have progressed. Giving them control of this meant that their learning was consolidated.”

“It was great to see the students invested in their own learning. I noticed they were invested in conversations about their strengths, weaknesses and goals. The students were playing an active role in the planning and sharing of their own learning, promoting a school culture of engagement and growth.”

“I really enjoyed seeing students take charge and talk about their learning, sharing the things they wanted to show off. They had time to walk around the classroom and share a learning game with parents too. I was super proud hearing students talk about their successes and next steps!”

“I liked how the students had the confidence to talk about their learning; it was very powerful to see. I heard one student say it was empowering to talk about and show their parents what they have done in class.”

‘I loved that the students were so proud to share all of their hard work with their families. It was great seeing the parents involved in the activities the students had planned and asking them questions about their learning.’

‘The students were amazing, it was fantastic to hear them speak so confidently about their learning and what their next steps were. They were so enthusiastic about sharing all their work. There was such a positive vibe in the classroom.’
